

Author bio

Dr Bimali Indrarathne

Dr Bimali Indrarathne is a Lecturer in Applied Linguistics at the University of York, UK. Before joining York, she worked at King's College London and Lancaster University. In Sri Lanka, she worked at Kotelawala Defence University and in several government schools. She has a PhD in Applied Linguistics and an MA in TESOL, both from Lancaster University. She also has an MA in Linguistics from Kelaniya University and a BA from Peradeniya University. She holds both Cambridge DELTA and CELTA.

Bimali's main research interest is Second Language Acquisition. She's currently running several teacher-education projects in South Asia on English language teaching materials designing, raising teacher awareness on the effects of learning difficulties in learning languages and teaching English at university contexts.